The Range Rover Sport is about to get a new generation, but the old one still manages to impress. So, now that a new one is almost ready to come out of its hatch, what can owners of the current generation do to keep their vehicles fresh? It's simple: turn to the aftermarket world.

However, you don't have to fit your Range with all sorts of bits and pieces that might cross the overkill border - a few simple elements are enough. We've brought you an example of this: the vehicle in the adjacent... [...]
