Lamborghini's have long been the favorites of tuning companies from all over the world. Whether it's the exotic Italian heritage or the imposing power at its heart, Lamborghini's are the equivalent to tuners as flames are to moths. UK tuner Amari Design is no stranger to corralling Italian raging bulls, and it's to no one's surprise that they've taken the task of building a new program for the Lamborghini Gallardo. Calling it the Invidia 540, Amari Design took the task of building a comprehensive aerodynamic body kit that has been constructed from carbon fiber, fiber glass, and lightweight ABS plastic. The objective at hand? Turn the Gallardo into something akin to the LP 570-4 Super Trofeo Stradale. The task is easier said than done, but Amari Design's new aero body kit is determined to give the Gallardo that oh-so-desirable Super Trofeo look. The body kit comprises of a number of new components, including a wider and deeper front fender and rear arch extensions with vented bumper pieces. It also has wider wings and arches on both the front and rear, a wider rear bumper, a custom rear diffuser, and, need we explain any further, a large carbon effect, a Performante-inspired rear wing, and a new set of 20" alloy wheels finished in matte black.[...]
