It was in 2011, right after the Evoque came out, that we realized Land Rover was going to change as a company. They adopted the identity of a maker of luxury vehicles with concept car looks and crisp interiors. Don't get us wrong, it was only the first step, as the company still makes some very ugly models. One of the ugliest Rovers still in production was the Sport. Criticized for being ugly, too brash and not very good on the road,... [...]
