We still remember quite vividly how Volkswagen last year revealed a 400 horsepower Golf R concept at a major auto show in China. Extracting that much power from a 2-liter turbo engine seemed insane, but a few months ago, the German automaker revealed a production model may arrive in 2016. What does that have to do with anything? Well, the Chinese loved the super-Golf that they decided not to wait. A local tuning company called ASPEC took ...[...]
