Japanese tuning firm, Veilside, is no stranger to building new auto projects using their Japanese counterparts as their base model. This time around, the aftermarket company headed over to the 2011 Tokyo Auto Salon to present their latest masterpiece, the 4509 GTR Supra. Based on the fourth generation Toyota Supra that dominated the streets of the world back in the 90's, the 4509 GTR certainly looks nothing like its predecessor. The credit, for better or worse, certainly goes to Veilside for the sick as a high fever styling upgrades.[...]
