We use to fool ourselves into thinking that vehicles such as the gloriously beautiful Ferrari 458 Italia didn't need any type of upgrade or styling modification whatsoever. Then tuner upon tuner proved us incredibly wrong with their packages for the sports car, and one more tuner is about to do the same. German tuner, Wheelsandmore, has added minor touches to the Ferrari to optimize its appeal and make 458 Italia lovers like us become that much more enamored with it. Thanks to a weight optimized, handcrafted high-end exhaust system with valve flaps and manifolds, plus an ecu upgrade, the V8 engine's power has been increased from 570 HP to an impressive 620 HP, with a peak torque increase of about 100 lbs-ft to a total of 498 lbs-ft. The result is a 0 to 60 mph sprint made in about 3.32 seconds. The package also includes a new set of 21" forged multipiece wheels 6Sporz² in size 9.0 x 21 at the front and 12.5 x 21 inch at the rear wearing 245/30/21 and 345/25/21 Hankook high performance tires.[...]
