The Chevrolet Camaro ZL1 caught our attention for a variety of things, chief among them being its distinction of having the most powerful engine a Camaro has ever had. It's powered by an LSA 6.2-liter supercharged V-8 engine that produces an estimated 550 horsepower and 550 lb/ft of torque so you know that there aren't any donkeys under that hood. Seeing as it's a Camaro, the number of tuners itching to get on the ZL1 bandwagon figures to be a crapshoot sooner than later. But the creds should definitely go to SLP Performance for getting the first crack at building a ZL1 kit ? sort of.[...]
