

BMW Z4 320d by AC Schnitzer

25/02/2011 05:14 by admin

With only a few days away from the Geneva Motor Show, AC Schnitzer has announced its line-up for Switzerland. All we have as of right now are the names of the packages plus a few images, but it looks like AC Schnitzer has done a great job, as usual. The first package from the German tuner is called the Z4 99d and uses a diesel engine that delivers 190 HP and 420 NM of torque. With this amount of power, plus a weight reduction of 230 kilos (507 lbs.), the tuner has managed to obtain a 0 to 60 mph sprint time of just 6.9 seconds, while top speed is 146 mph. This performance is accompanied by a fuel consumption of 3.8 liter diesel per 100 kilometers and a CO2 emission of just 99.18 g/km[...]

Source: topspeed Tuning