

Chevrolet Camaro Convertible 'HPE600' by Hennessey

09/03/2011 20:54 by admin

When Chevrolet officially introduced the Camaro Convertible to the public late last year, there seemed to be no denying the fact that as soon as the car went on sale, aftermarket companies would dive at the chance to become the first ones to release a tuning package for the Camaro Convertible. Well, you can now take that race off the board after Hennessey Performance unveiled their new performance package for the Camaro Convertible SS called the 'HPE600'. Truth be told, the 'HPE600' isn't exactly a new Hennessey product as the American aftermarket company already used it on the 2011 Chevrolet Camaro. The result for both cars was pretty much dead on, with both having a modified output of somewhere north of 600 horsepower.[...]

Source: topspeed Tuning