Well that didn't take too long, did it? The Range Rover Evoque hasn't been out all that long and it has already received its first tuning package from German tuner, Arden. Guess after the lights fade and the sparkles burn out, even the Range Rover Evoque can use a little updating. And we definitely mean a little, as Arden's package only provides minor updates that were done to make the SUV sportier and stronger, and give it a more urban appearance. The AR8 City-Roader package takes the 2.0-liter turbo gasoline engine found in the Evoque and adds a new handmade stainless steel exhaust system and high performance catalyst. These additions make for a 30 HP increase, from 240 HP to 270 HP. Not much, but enough to make a small difference in the overall output.[...]
