

Overkill: Fab Design Cadillac Escalade

07/06/2011 01:15 by admin

We know that Fab Design likes to create flashy tuning packages, but this time the company went even further on the questionable side of the tuning world, playing with a Cadillac Escalade.

It all started when a North African customer wanted the company to customize his Escalade, aiming for an extreme makeover. Actually, the owners wanted to be sure that he'll get a creation that will draw all the attention in the world and the aftermarket developer was more than happy to do this for him. [...]

Source: autoevolution