It seems that not even the mighty Porsche 911 GT3 is safe from tuners that want to create something that differs from the norm. The German tuning specialist from Magnat have tuned the track-focused version of the 911 into what they call the 'Snowmobile', a name that is derived from the color combination that's been applied to both the exterior and interior.

There's nothing special about a white paintjob these days, as it's the most widespread tone for those looking to stand out. With so many [...]
