The departed Murcielago is no longer part of Lamborghini's future, but it certainly doesn't mean that we've seen the last of this highly popular supercar. That much you can be sure of when tuning companies like Wheelsandmore are still around. The German tuning firm famous for some pretty sick projects in the past have outdone themselves yet again with their new program for the Murcielago LP670-4 SV. The project is fittingly called the Murcielago Final Edition, a nice homage to the recently discontinued Lamborghini supercar. And in choosing what type of Murcielago to work on, Wheelsandmore opted for the grand-daddy of them all, the Super Veloce.[...]
