

Lamborghini Murcielago 'LB-R Zero Fighter' by Liberty Walk Performance

21/07/2011 22:33 by admin

Japanese tuning company, Liberty Walk Performance, is a household name in the Japanese tuning scene. With their works finding their way on the Web, these guys are well on their way to being recognized the world over as a pretty bad ass company. Known for their works on exotic supercars, LWP has come out with a new kit for the Lamborghini Murcielago called the 'LB-R Zero Fighter'. The styling kit features a new paint scheme that was inspired by Zero Fighter planes from World War II. The military theme of the whole LB Performance Type 2 body kit also features camouflage-themed seats on the interior with the calipers given the same treatment. In addition to that, the car also comes with a set of Werfen GT-04 wheels with similar camo pattern barrels.[...]

Source: topspeed