

Novitec Fiat Grande Punto X - One little mosquito

04/01/2009 12:46 by Car Tuning and Modified Cars News

It's almost usual to see that every tuner is going for expensive, promising powerful cars. (...)

It's almost usual to see that every tuner is going for expensive, promising powerful cars. There are few exceptions, as the Italian tuner Novitec Rosso choosed a moreover normal car, the new Fiat Grande Punto. The new Grande-Punto is also a handsome car with nice looks and a great tuning potential, reason for why Novitec's designers started with the vehicle's appearance, designing a new body. The changes brought to the new Punto a front bumper with cup-spoiler, new hood, side panels, roof spoiler, roof air intake and a rear bumper with an integrated diffuser. Under the mosquito's hood, there can be found a 1.9 JTD diesel beast with the Novitec Powerrail 4 ECU, producing up to 160 hp of power and enormous 328 Nm of torque available at 1,950 rpm. It can reach 100 kmph taking only 8.6 seconds, with a top speed of 210 kmph. Quite a mini-monster that we got here!

Source: Car Tuning and Modified Cars News