

BMW 1M Coupe Raze by Revozport

06/08/2011 00:02 by admin

When the BMW 1-Series M Coupe first debuted, we didn't think any tuner would even think to mess with such a beautiful, powerful machine. We were proven wrong when Kelleners Sport and TechTec revealed their packages for the sports coupe. Now, Revozport has also tried their hand at the 1-Series M Coupe with exterior updates and future engine modifications. Revozport's package begins with a new front grill, new front splitter, and a front splitter brake duct kit that give way to a lightweight bonnet. The changes continue to the side of the BMW where the tuner has added new side skirts that lead to the lightweight trunk, trunk lip spoiler, and GT spoiler with mount. Other features include a roof spoiler, lightweight roof panel, mirror covers, rear diffuser, and interior door cards. All the exterior components are made in carbon fiber and all components are designed to smooth airflow over the roofline which reduces drag. This allows the vehicle to be have a smoother ride and even have improved fuel efficiency.[...]

Source: topspeed