As their name obviously suggests, Classic Recreations is an American tuning company that specializes in taking the iconic cars of yesteryear and turning them into modern models. Their creations feature the latest in today's technology mixed in with original and classic looks. The company's latest project doesn't deviate from that description as the team over at CR has taken on the task of building the legendary 1965 Shelby G.T.350. Classic Recreations did plenty of work on the car at their facility in Oklahoma, including a complete restoration work on the car's body while also outfitting it with today's technology. It's a car that will definitely cater to old-school aficionados, as well as modern-day torque twisters. Sure, it won't come cheap - the base price is $119,000 - but anybody knows there's a certain price to be paid for speed, power, and nostalgia. The Shelby G.T.350CR has all three of those qualities wrapped in one awesome package.[...]
