On the day before the Frankfurt Motor Show opened its doors to the public, German tuning company, Anderson Germany, provided an awesome appetizer for what lies ahead with their new tuning program for the Porsche Panamera Turbo. Made up of aerodynamic and performance improvements, Anderson Germany made sure to give the Panamera Turbo an extensive round-up of upgrades. For the body, the noticeable changes include a new radiator grille, headlight borders, a carbon fiber hood with air intakes, redesigned side air intakes, a lightweight boot lid, and a set of 22" black wheels with red borders. As options, Anderson Germany is also offering tinted headlights and taillights. Inside, the Panamera Turbo gets a fashionable makeover with plenty of carbon and carbon leather, Alcantara upholstery with matching red stitching, PS3 and DVD functions, and a whole new sound system set-up.[...]
