While the European version of the 2012 Honda Civic has just arrived, the US incarnation of the car is already out there receiving tuning bits. To be more specific, Fox Marketing is working on a 2012 Civic Si project for this year's SEMA.

This is all part of a bigger project, with Honda offering multiple Civics to the top US tuning companies for the aftermarket event. But let's get back to what Fox Marketing is doing with the new import.

The works started in the engine bay, with an impressi... [...]
