Kahn Design has been pretty busy lately releasing at least one tuning package every week, even though most people's eyes are caught up with the new toys at the Frankfurt Motor Show. This week is no different as Kahn has released a new tuning kit based on the Land Rover Range Rover. It's called the Swiss edition and, as its name suggests, has been destined for Switzerland for use by patrol police. This special police car will be painted mostly in black with a white standard hood and Kahn RS 22-inch wheels. A special custom interior will combine style and personality with a stylish police theme. It also seems as though this car will be offered in a different number of colors and designs to suit individual specifications.[...]
