The Mercedes ML63 AMG. This isn't exactly a car that makes tuning firms sweat in anticipation of what they could do with it, but German tuner, Kicherer, decided to take a stab at it anyway with their latest tuning package. Their new upgrade kit is called "Carbon Series" and it starts with a black carbon foil that covers every element of the exterior so that the vehicle looks uni-colored. In addition to that, Kicherer also enlisted the help of a new set of 23" wheels that are combined with an electronic chassis adjustment. For the interior, the tuner is offering a combination of carbon-leather and alcantara.[...]
