The aftermarket world has no limits and thus the line between cool and overkill is a very thin one. We are now bringing forth a project that is situated close to that line - we won't mention on which side, we'll let you decide.

We are talking about a Ferrari 458 Italia, which has been dressed in white by the factory (white is THE color these days, haven't you heard?) and has received a few tuning elements, such as a Oakley Design front lip.

However, the tuning highlight of the car is a [...]
