Look at all of the Ford Focus models headed to SEMA and we're not going to blame you if your head starts to spin. We understood the whole point of a show like SEMA, but all the Focus models that will be in attendance - seven in all - will be tuning heaven for fans of Ford's sports hatchback. COBB Tuning is one of the aftermarket companies that worked on the Focus, and they're bringing a program that's as extensive - maybe even more - as any of the other Focus models. Called the 'Motorsports Challenger Focus', the COBB-tuned Focus features a carbon fiber hood, a redesigned front bumper, and a large rear wing on the exterior. As far as performance modifications are concerned, the Focus the following items: a custom turbo kit mated to a new exhaust manifold, a front-mounted intercooler, intake, and airbox set-up, Cosworth forged pistons. The Focus's chassis was also upgraded, courtesy of a StopTech Trophy big brake kit, an Eibach Multi-Pro R2 coilover suspension, and COBB Tuning's own suspension bushings.[...]
