Europeans love wagons. Americans... hmm... not so much. However, US tuner Hennessey is making everything it can to popularize these family vehicles.

For example. John Hennessey, the head of the company, drives one every day. However, don't think that this is hard for him in any way, as we are talking about a Cadillac CTS-V Sport Wagon, obviously inappropriately touched by the aftermarket developer.

However, the man is working hard: last weekend, for example, he risked missing dinner with ... [...]
