Scion is one of the most fit brands for the upcoming SEMA event, as the brand's spirit is all about youth, so the company is planning to throw quite a party at next week's event.

Scion's latest product, the Toyota-based iQ, which has entered the US market earlier this month, will be the main DJ, with the automotive producer now giving us three custom incarnations of the little car.

Scion's 2011 SEMA display will include more development and if this three little beasts are a sign of things ... [...]
