

2011 SEMA Auto Show: The Hatchbacks

03/11/2011 05:12 by admin

Hatchbacks may not offer the same kind of thrill as sports cars and muscle cars. They also don't have the utility of SUVs and pick-ups. Heck, they're not so much for luxury, either. But at the 2011 SEMA Auto Show, hatchbacks will have their turn in the spotlight as a host of custom-modded hatches will be making their way to Las Vegas. This list comprises most of the vehicles you'll see. There are Scions iQs, Ford Fiestas, Ford Focus, and even a Lexus CT200h. Not only are these vehicles modded to the brim, but they also give us an idea on all the possibilities that come with aftermarket works being done on hatches. The people who think that hatches aren't cool enough should take a good look at this list and if they don't change their minds, then they really need to check themselves before they wreck themselves.[...]

Source: topspeed