Here at autoevolution, we're really big fans of the Range Rover Evoque, a compact SUV that looks like it has sacrificed only the door handles on its road from concept to production model. Besides a bigger engine, the only thing that we want to see done to it is adding even more luxury.

That's where the latest project from Startech comes into play, a project that will officially bow at the 2011 Dubai International Motor Show. So what have they done to the five-door version besides chopping 35 ... [...]
