

Range Rover Evoque by Startech

09/11/2011 01:42 by admin

The Land Rover Evoque may be one of the most elegant SUVs currently out on the market, but that doesn't mean that German tuner, Startech, can't improve on the delectable family mover. Their new program for the delectable Evoque features a few exterior enhancements and high-class interior options, as well as an engine update yet to be revealed. It will be displayed at the 2011 Dubai Motor Show on November 10th-14th. The new program for the Ranger Rover Evoque can be combined with both the three and five-door Evoque models and starts with an update for the car's exterior. Startech added new front and rear bumpers, striking air inlets, a new front spoiler, a new rear diffuser, a new rear wing, and new tailpipes for the exhaust system. The car will sit on a new set of three-piece 21" wheels with a new set of sport springs that will lower the SUV's ride by 1.4 inches. The interior will benefit from the finest leather and Alcantara, wood or carbon-fiber trim sets in any desired color, and a wide variety of surface finishes.[...]

Source: topspeed