There was no need for the fact that the Porsche 911 is the tuning world's favorite child to be proven, but German aftermarket developer Prior Design is here to support this.

The company has just released an aerodynamic package for the rear-engined coupe, but it doesn't target the current 991 or the past 997 generation, but the one before the latter, the 996.

The vehicle has been gifted with a new front fascia, front fenders, a front lip spoiler, side skirts and a rear bumper.

Here is th... [...]
