While BMW is preparing a refresh version for the X6 SUV, the tuners are looking for all kind of possibilities to update the current model. The last one to offer such a package is the German tuner CLP Automotive. For 10,00 euro (about $13,500 at the current exchange rates) you can get a pretty impressive upgrade package for both the exterior and the interior. The exterior package includes a new front apron with a central air shaft, a widening of the front fenders, a side skirt of a special kind, door panels, widening rear fenders as well as a rear bumper. These new items can be made either in a paintable version or much more solid carbon. At customer's request the tuner can also offer headlight covers and/or a rear spoiler.[...]
