The Range Rover Evoque is a vehicle with a lot of tuning potential and aftermarket developers are taking advantage of this, with the latest company to present a modification pack for the British crossover being Startech.

The German tuning company already introduced an Evoque kit at the Dubai International Motor Show this month, but it is now back with a radically different approach. The company focused on the Evoque's on-road side, sacrificing the other side of the car.

We get a new front ... [...]
