Bulgarian tuner Vilner usually gets its hands dirty with customer projects for people looking to add class to their vehicle, and this latest one seems to fit this description as well. The project involves taking a Mercedes Benz G 55 AMG and turning it into a V8-powered luxury barge.

The interior has been reworked with beige leather and alcantara. The seats use the perforated type for the centers, which also have a diamond shaped theme. Working in combination with darker accents, this was also... [...]
