The Mercedes E-Class L certainly doesn't lack in luxury. But when you look at it, you have to admit that it still needs a little sprucing up to really deliver home the point that it's a luxury limousine that shouldn't be messed with. The boys at Prior Design pretty much think the same way, so they did something that we couldn't do from the comforts of our couch: they actually developed an aerodynamic kit to give the E-Class L a little more attitude. Among the modifications Prior Design gave to the E-Class L include a new front bumper, a pair of new side skirts, a new rear bumper, a new set of 20" alloy wheels, and a new suspension set-up that improves the luxury saloon's handling and characteristics.[...]
