The Lamborghini Aventador is starting to be targeted by more and more tuners, with the latest aftermarket developer to announced a package for the Italian supercar being ASMA Design.

The German tuner recently released a rendering of its upcoming Murcielago project, but didn't offer too many additional details. The Raging Bull gets an aggressive body kit that includes bold aerodynamic elements, with the one that stands out the most being the massive rear wing.

The vehicle rides on massive w... [...]
