Usually when they show a body or power kit, German tuners AC Schnitzer use a boring gray or black car so you're eyes aren't dazzled by silly paintjobs. Thankfully, they went all the way with their latest project, which will show up at the 2012 Geneva Motor Show.

An extreme sports saloon has been born in the ACS5, a 2012 BMW M5 in tuned disguised. Let's start with what everyone wants to know: the 4.4-liter TwinPower turbo V8 has been tickled to produce 620 HP and 790 Nm of peak torque.

The ... [...]
