We are still a few days away from the public debut of the new Ferrari F12 Berlinetta and yet somebody has managed to bring the vehicle into the tuning world. We are talking about virtual tuning of course, but this doesn't make the story less interesting.

The car has been gifted with a set of ADV.1 wheels, which uses a complex multispoke design and a matte black finish, with the rims somehow bringing motorsport thoughts to our minds. We have to remind you that these wheels would have to withst... [...]
