German tuners Hamann have finally revealed the Hawk-bodied version of the new Mercedes SLS AMG Roadster, a project that will make its way to the 2012 Geneva Motor Show.

This carbon-fiber infused body kit comes with fresh body kit parts, suspension, wheels and a completely overhauled interior with sporty touches. There's more carbon fiber on this SLS Roadster than on some race cars: the diffuser at the front, the bonnet, the wing at the back and especially the interior, where it's been colored... [...]
