The latest tuning company to target the 991 generation of the Porsche 911 is Sportec, which offers a entry-level modification package for the rear-engined coupe. The Swiss tuner offers a custom exhaust system that comes with high-flow catalytic converters, as well as a performance air filter and an ECU remap. Thus, the flat six now delivers an extra 20 hp and 25 Nm (18.5 lb-ft).

The vehicle can now complete the 0 to 62 mph sprint in 4.7 seconds, 0.1 seconds faster than the stock version, while...
