

FAB Design's Opposite Day has a Positive Effect on the McLaren MP4-12C

06/03/2012 16:56 by admin

For the second time this year, FAB Design has surprised us in a positive way with one of its tunes. After the livable Mercedes-Benz E-Class Convertible, the notorious maker of one of the most hideous Escalade transformations ever, presented its take on the McLaren MP4-12C today at the 2012 Geneva Auto Salon. And it's not bad at all. The Swiss design house adds some more flair to the British supercar through a new wide-body aero package that includes redesigned bumpers and fenders, a spoiler under the windshield, side skirts, profile air intakes, plus a carbon fiber lip spoiler and rear wing.[...]

Source: Carscoop