

McLaren MP4-1C Terso by FAB Design

08/03/2012 02:04 by admin

The McLaren MP4-12C has become a tuning favorite at the 2012 Geneva Motor Show. Now it appears that FAB Design is joining in on the MP4-12C love. The Swiss tuner has prepared their very first program for the McLaren supercar and to their credit, it's mighty impressive. Called the MP4-12C Terso, the supercar comes with plenty of new digs, particularly on the aerodynamic and performance ends. FAB Design's MP4-12C aero kit is made up of a new front skirt with larger air intakes, new side skirts, redesigned side air intakes, a new rear bumper and diffuser, and a new rear spoiler that goes over the top of the stock spoiler McLaren fitted into the MP4-12C. Rounding out the exterior enhancements are a new set of 20" FAB-Design Evolution three-part forged wheels wrapped in Dunlop SP SportMaxx tires. Interior modifications are entirely up to the customer's preference to which they can choose from a variety of high-end materials, including leather, Alcantara, carbon, or aluminum.[...]

Source: topspeed