Listen to ten hours of dubstep, consult a manual for urban art and then tune a car. That's probably how this very interesting but thoroughly strange German-tuned Volkswagen Golf GTI came into the world.

The five-door version of the Mk VI GTI has been given a matte gray finish for most of the body except the front wings and lower grille surround, which have been wrapped using comic book imagery.

The Golf also has a bit of carbon wrap here and there and the obligatory lowered suspension and ... [...]
