Noted German tuner, Senner Tuning, has released their new program for the new Audi S5, adding a highly appreciated tuning program for Audi's resident sports coupe. In line with what Audi did to the face-lifted S5 Coupe - some styling tweaks and the addition of a new 3.0-liter supercharged V6 engine that produces 333 horsepower - Senner Tuning's new package takes all those new elements and ratchets them up a notch. The exterior program for the S5 Coupe is far from finished and Senner Tuning has said that they're working on new carbon fiber parts as part of their aerodynamic kit. Nevertheless, the tuner did say that they're already offering packages for the interior, including a carbon fiber trim package. Despite the promise of an aero kit, the real highlight of Senner Tuning's program involves the engine upgrade, which includes the addition of a new sports air filter, a custom exhaust system, and an updated ECU unit. All that added, Senner was able to bump up the output from the S5's 3.0-liter V6 TFSI engine from 333 ponies and 324 lb/ft of torque to 377 horsepower and 369 lb/ft of torque.[...]
