

LB Performance Gallardo

15/01/2009 22:06 by admin

The balloon white car was on their stand next to a Murcielago and some rather cool lambo style quad bikes. It looks to have been dramatically lowered to the point where the wheels have disappeared into the body work; this is done using an air suspension kit. An extreme body kit has also been applied, incorporating a couple of large air ducts in the rear behind the wheels and up front below the front fender. There's a new rear wing that's almost larger than the car itself and a new set of what look to be two piece alloys.

Source: gtspirit.com