The Volkswagen Golf GTI Black Dynamic is a very special vehicle, not because it's got serious horsepower under its hood. It's a special ride because it's the result of a months-long project by nine Volkswagen apprentices - four young women and five young men - aged 18 to 24. According to Volkswagen, the 'Apprentice Golf GTI 2012' was started to give young and up-and-coming designers to put their skills to the test in a real automotive project. The result is the Golf GTI Black Dynamic, which is making its world debut at the Worthersee GTI meet in Austria. As part of the revamps given to the vehicle, the apprentices fitted a number of key styling upgrades, including a Deep Black Metallic exterior finish combined with flat anthracite film trim, a matte gray hood with honeycomb decals, LED headlamps, and a new set of black rims.[...]
