

Lamborghini Gallardo Superleggera LP620-4 "Green Beret" by Wheelsandmore

26/05/2012 21:16 by admin

As evocative and downright exotic Wheelsandmore has been with their tuning projects, we can't help but wonder if they end up running out of ideas at some point. Apparently, their recent run of new programs for some of the most powerful cars on the planet is proving that notion to be completely untrue. For their latest offering, the German tuner has set its sights on a car that needs no introduction: the Lamborghini Gallardo Superleggera LP570-4. Every Wheelsandmore tuning program always carries a standard performance upgrade and the "Green Beret," as the company has called this baby, is no different. The German tuner went and combined a digitally program-able, remote-operated valve control with special carbon-frame airfilters and a remapped ECU unit with a handmade, stainless steel exhaust system, effectively giving the Gallardo Superleggera a sinister performance upgrade. How sinister? Well, from the standard 570 horsepower coming out of the super car's 5.2-liter V10 engine, Wheelsandmore managed to increase that to a powerful 620 horsepower, hence the LP620-4 designation.[...]

Source: topspeed