Kelleners Sport isn't a stranger when it comes to tuning BMWs, and their latest project only adds credence to their reputation as one of the best BMW tuners around. The program is for the new BMW M5, which as we all know, is a car that's ripe for the aftermarket industry. For their project, Kelleners Sport decided to give the M5 a comprehensive aerodynamic program with a future performance modification kit set to follow. In terms of the former, the Kelleners kit involves plenty of carbon fiber components, including a new front lip spoiler, extended side skirts, carbon fiber mirror caps, a new rear diffuser, and an aggressive rear spoiler fitted into the car's trunk. The program also features a new set of lightweight multi-spoke wheels, which adds a touch of sporty aggression on the car.[...]
