

Gemballa introduces "Genuine Diamond Coating"

31/05/2012 10:03 by admin

You know when people say that "diamonds are a girl's best friend?" Apparently, it's also pretty close to German tuner Gemballa. In what could be one of the flashiest, gaudiest, and downright most expensive new aftermarket products, Gemballa has introduced the "Genuine Diamond Coating." As the name clearly suggests, the diamond coating is the world's very first exterior and interior diamond coating. And here we thought that Swarovski crystals were already a tad over the top. Silly us, right? According to Gemballa CEO Andreas Schwarz, the German tuner isn't kidding when they mean diamond coating. "When GEMBALLA speaks of diamonds, we really mean it", Schwarz explains. "Our complex process uses genuine diamonds as its key ingredient - not metal pigments, glass fragments, or crystals." [...]

Source: topspeed