While Ferrari models are generally cars we don't like to see get any updates, the 458 Italia has received a ton of tuning packages since its official debut. The latest package has been announced by Vorsteiner and is called the 458-V. With this new package, the tuner wanted to enhance the car's looks and performance with impressive aerodynamic components. The new 458-V package starts with an add-on front spoiler, a new rear deck lid spoiler, and a rear diffuser with extended aero fins. All of these elements were built from pre-preg carbon fiber and maintain the balance from the additional downforce the car has received.[...]
