The Shelby GT500 is a car that's too expressive for the term "beast". However, there will always be some who want more from it and the aftermarket world is more than happy to help. The latest example of such a development comes from Vossen Wheels, which has fitted the muscle car with its goodies. The tuning company released a video showing a Shelby GT500 riding on a set of VVS-CV3 concave rims, aiming to show... [...]
