Branew designed a lovely tuning package for Nissan GT-R and now they prepared a special tuning kit for the new Nissan 370Z. They revealed the new performance package for 370Z at the 2009 Tokyo Auto Salon a couple of days ago. At the exterior level Branew redesigned the car's body kit with carbon fiber elements, a new front spoiler, side steps, rear spoiler and a rear wing. To finish the car's unique look they installed a set of multispoke alloy wheels which will be offered in various sizes. The car tuner wanted to improve this car's performances and they reprogrammed the 3.7L V6 engine's control unit and installed a new sports exhaust system. Branew also installed a high performance braking system and a new suspension kit which makes handling easier than ever.
